In this era of international convergence, it is essential to develop an encompassing business perspective that transcends physical and cultural frontiers. Modern-day marketing scenarios are far progressive and have been greatly influenced by marketing tools and the internet. As a result of these interventions, small, medium, and large scale companies around the globe had to come up with newer strategies and tactics that accommodate the interplay of these factors. But in order to realize the corporate goals through such innovations, it requires experts who have the capacity to guide the organization by leveraging their skills, knowledge, and experience. As an aspiring entrepreneur, I wish to bring about such reforms during my career. I am confident that the master's in Strategic Business Management offered by the esteemed ABC University will empower me for this.

I grew up admiring my father run his business dexterously. As I grew up, he would talk to me about his business plans and ask me for ideas. These interactions gave me the courage and motivation to choose a similar path for my career. My admiration became a passion for emulating his excellence but on my own terms.

Last year I completed my bachelor's degree in Business Administration from Goodwill University in Bangalore. The courses I have attended include management studies, international relations, and technology for business. After learning these concepts, I became more aware of the developments in the business world and learned to see how even minor events can make an impact in the global market. The lack of such holistic insight is what plateaus the professional growth of many aspirants.

Along with my studies at the college, I improved my abilities through an internship at WeSell Traders, where I planned the firm's promotional activities and took part in organizational work. Subsequently, I worked at the Department of Public Relations at WB Financial Services and was in charge of communal service campaigns as well as planning, gauging, and providing business recommendations. These experiences were invaluable in bolstering my practical management skills and endowing me with wisdom that cannot be acquired from books or classrooms.

The UK has a brilliant cultural ambiance and a well-established commercial sector. The country has also been a driving force in the advancement of scientific and technological, and marketing innovations. For these reasons, I decided to choose the United Kingdom for my higher education and prepare myself for an international career.
